Hello, all.

I have a viewpoint of the NFL, the team known as the "Saints" and the issues of moving this team.

First off, the San Antonio newspaper has done an injustice to the owner of this team.

Mr., Tom Benson has not been indecisive, as has been accused.

What has happened was that the mayor of the city of New Orleans stated that the Louisiana dome would be ready in a few months.

The governor has stated otherwise, as the dome had not even been inspected at that time.

The dome actually belongs to the state of Louisiana, and not the city of New Orleans.

As it stands, there are 3 options that have been approved by the NFL proper.

The first option, leave this team where it is now, provided that the facility can be used.

Move the team to Los Angeles, home of the second largest television market in the United States.

Move the team to San Antonio.

So far, the city of Los Angeles has offered nearly 3 million dollars in relocation expenses to me, and I am not a member of the team proper.

The city of LA already has all of the correct facilities, including a close helipad.

San Antonio has yet to offer even the players themselves any incentives whatsoever.

The City of San Antonio has NO facility for rotor-wing aircraft.

When a VIP, such as the president shows up, the city fully closes a major highway, such as US 281, or US 90.

Such actions would not be acceptable for any major NFL game.

So, in the end, it all boils down to money, for the NFL, for the team, for me.

Thank you.
